To Whom It May Concern:

It is my pleasure to recommend the professional services of Norman R. Wrights and Sons naval architects design team. For the past few years we have been working closely with Bill Wright and Adam Evripidou on the design and development of the Fleming 58 for which they produced hull design, tank testing services, propeller design, structural design, interior design, weight and balance studies and stability calculations among other services.

We found their work to be thorough, accurate, and timely. Mutual understanding and communication of ideas and concepts was always clear, easy and well versed. As a result they have helped us achieve our objective of building a state of the art yacht to the highest quality standards that offered design features that our other models could not whilst at the same time maintaining the well established looks and feel of the Fleming range.

Based on our collaboration, I have no hesitations in recommending Norman R. Wrights and Sons for yacht design services.

Sincerely,
